Given the fact that it's home to the luxury-oriented Rodeo Drive, is it any wonder that the vast majority of dining options in Beverly Hills are expensive? From steakhouses to high-end sushi spots, Beverly Hills is home to plenty of restaurants perfect for power lunches, birthdays and celebrations, as well as a handful of places that won't totally break the bank. We've also included our favorite spots in Century City, since the neighborhood is less than two miles away and encompasses the Westfield Century City mall, a dining destination in its own right. Check out our guide to the best Beverly Hills area restaurants for meals that are worth their price tag, big or small.
